

An Active State.

Perhaps, all things considered, no State in the Union possesses more natural advantages in the way of climate, soil, means of transportation furnished by nation, mineral wealth, variety of temperature, timber supply and everything that meets the wants of the human family than this, our favored California. Our climate ranges from the rarified atmosphere of the mountain regions where frost is not uncommon eight months in the year, and where the period between the disappearance and the coming of snow is not over five months, down to the tropical region where neither frost nor snow is ever seen, and where the corn-field and the orange grove stand side by side. We have a people as energetic and industrious as may be found on the face of the globe. They are enterprising yet not parsimonious. They are curious and experimental by nature, and spend money freely in agricultural tests and the trial of new enterprises. The following from the California Reporter, one of the few San Francisco newspapers that either know or care anything about the interior of the State tell the story well and truthfully: "A perusal of the interior papers would do a world of good to those people of a croaking disposition, who have little faith in the future of California. The constant reader of the country journals is stuck with the quantity of news in them just now. Hardly one can be picked up that does not contain an account of one, or several, new enterprises in the agricultural, manufacturing, or commercial way. It is evident that like the Athenians of old, the people of California have a hankering after new things. The number of agricultural experiments being made is especially large. And it is noticeable that most of the experiments turn out well. Tobacco, ramie, and cotton are fast getting out of the experimental stage, and in a few years give solid promise of becoming established industries. Any one who reads our 'Progress of the Interior' for a few months, will become convinced that the people of the State are keeping their weather eye open to the main chance, and have no intention of letting outsiders walk off with the profits, if they themselves can manage to keep them. Our orchardists, particularly, are showing an appreciation of the benefits of doing one's own work. All over the State they have, within the past few months, been clubbing together and setting up fruit-drying machines.

The Grangers' Bank.

Although the scheme from its inception met with a studied, systematic opposition from those whose monopolies its success would destroy, the Grangers' Bank proposition continues to meet public favor, and so far as it has assumed shape, is entirely satisfactory to the projectors and all in whose interests it is intended to operate. To establish and carry into successful operation a business requiring such an amount of capital and such extensive and various preparations as the Grangers' State Bank, requires time not only in the carrying out of details but on the part of those intending to deposit their money in its vaults. The friends of the bank having money in other institutions must necessarily wait the expiration of the notification of withdrawal before the money could be transferred from one bank to the other, and the work of procuring loans was also retarded by the adverse influences of rival banks that feared the effect of the Grangers' bank on their own business. All these difficulties have been overcome, and to-morrow the Great Central Grangers' Bank will be formally opened in San Francisco for the transaction of business. Nothing but the worst possible management will prevent the success of this bank. It is a joint stock concern on a fraternal basis. Every farmer is interested in its prosperity. It is a grand center around which all will work together. It is intended to be unlike any other bank in the world in this respect: its funds will be devoted to the task of doing the greatest good to the greatest number.

Gratuitous Advice.

The Grangers are doing well in one respect; they are the recipients of a vast deal of advice from a class of men who in former days never said anything to the farmer except to inform him that what he had to sell was down to nothing—a drug on the market—and what he wished to purchase was very high—in fact hard to find at any price. The middleman—the good citizen who studied nine months in the year to get up a ring on something the farmer produced, or a monopoly on something the farmer was compelled to purchase during the other three, has now changed his line of policy—and would be a Granger and write a book for the instruction of the farmer on "When to Sell and Who to Sell to," only for the slight drawback that the farmer remembers the new comer, and remembers how unfortunate was his advice in former times. Advice is the only article these gentlemen ever did offer the farmer at anything like its valuation. Just now there is a surfeit of the commodity and the only wonder is that amid such an avalanche of "disinterested" counsel, the farmer does not find himself in doubt as to what he really should do. He has, however, managed to work his way along pretty well. He makes great savings here, and hold it even there. As a general manager of his own business the Granger gives signs of ultimately proving a success. All he wanted was advice and he is getting oceans of that.

REV. B. S. CALDWELL recently made a speech in Syracuse, New York, in which he denounced Masonry, Odd Fellowship, the Grange and all other secret organizations, with the vindictiveness of one who has been black-balled in every secret society that ever existed, and the ignorance of a baboon lecturer on the science of astronomy. He said he opposed Masonry because it was a secret society. Christ told his disciples to go and preach his gospel publicly to all the world; but Masonry says, "if you divulge any of my doctrines I will annihilate you." He opposed it because it exacts oaths from men without divine or civil sanction. It swears men to do wrong and enforces the obligations by the most terrible penalties. In the course of his tirade the Rev. idiot asserted that his father was killed by the Masons forty-seven years ago. It is highly probable that it was the fool killer in place of the Masons that made away with the old man, and it is a pity he did not perform his duty about twelve months before the date of Rev. B. S. CALDWELL'S birth.

SOME enthusiastic co-operationist suggests the idea of co-operative house-keeping. He thinks a couple of hundred families might live together out of one common purse and do well. BRIGHAM YOUNG tried the experiment with seventy-three wives, and though he has never announced the fact, the impression prevails among his most intimate friends that when he does make his official report on co-operative house-keeping, it will not tend to the encouragement of that class of enterprise where the firm consists of more than one of each sex.

THE Grangers now number quite a little army. On the first of the present month there were in the United States forty-one State Granges, and 17,214 subordinate Granges, with an average membership of sixty. This amounts to 1,032,840. Quite an army, for or against.

IN Santa Cruz and Butte counties a number of parties have been arrested within the past few days for cutting timber on Government land.

THE telegraphic wires between this city and San Francisco were again demoralized last evening, and our night reports did not get through.

Unequal Taxation.

EDITOR HERALD: I am the owner of land in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Santa Barbara counties, and having had occasion to examine the assessment roll for Los Angeles county, I find a remarkable difference in the assessed value of similar properties in the different counties. I find farming land assessed at $20 an acre here, while similar lands, equally valuable, are assessed in Santa Barbara county at $9 per acre, and in San Francisco county at $12 per acre. Grazing lands of equal value are assessed here at two to four dollars per acre, and in Santa Barbara at $1.50 per acre, and in San Francisco at $2.50 per acre. The assessed value of houses and buildings is assessed at seventy-five cents to two dollars. Buildings in Los Angeles city are assessed at a valuation double that of San Francisco. I know one man in San Francisco who owns over $30,000 worth of houses, who is assessed for three houses valued at $1,200. Another, who owns one team worth $10,000, is assessed for $600. And these are but two cases out of thousands that could be found on the assessment roll of that city. Again, San Francisco has an enormous amount of unpaid taxes—uncollected through the carelessness or favoritism of her officials. This, of course, makes the burden heavier on those who do pay. Mark the injustice done Los Angeles county! She is paying State taxes far in excess of other counties; and compared with San Francisco she is paying double the taxes upon actual cash value. Is there no remedy for this other than to adopt the same standard of value in vogue in other parts of the State? FAIR PLAY.

San Bernardino Items.

From the Guardian of July 12th. On Thursday last the building in which Mrs. Dustin was living, just across the race leading to Davis' mill, was burned to the ground. The property belonged to Judge Boren.

On Saturday last, while Mr. Holmes was in town attending the Fourth of July celebration, a large stack of hay and grain on his place, north of Warm Creek caught fire and was entirely consumed.

There was a rumor in town on Thursday that a house north of the road from San Bernardino to Cucamonga was destroyed and a child in the building burned to death.

We have examined this week some remarkable rich specimens of ore from Jack Martin's new discovery, about fifteen miles from Holcomb Valley. Fine gold can be traced all through them with the naked eye. Tests have been made of the ore, some of which show as high as $150 per ton, and averaging all through $50. This mine is owned by Jack Martin and W. B. Pierce, the original discoverers and locators, and is situated about five miles east of the Valverde Company's ditch on the summit of the mountain between the Mojave and the Rock Spring Cañon, distant from San Bernardino about thirty miles.

Friday evening, as the Central Pacific Railroad construction train came into the yard, at Truckee, a Chinaman in attempting to jump from one of the cars before the train stopped fell under the wheels and one truck ran over his left leg and right foot, crushing them in a horrible manner.

Cornelius Shields, a well-known resident of Grass Valley, was found dead in his cabin at New York Hill, Nevada county, on Tuesday.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

G. W. Morgan still has money to loan.
Professor Denton's course of lectures will commence to-morrow evening at Grange Hall.
Rev. A. M. Campbell, of our city, will have charge of the Wilmington College next year.
The Los Angeles will sail for San Francisco and Santa Barbara on Saturday, July 18th.
See advertisement of pocket-book lost. Bring the property to this office, and we will pay you well.
Mr. Saml Levy has purchased all of the corn from Denning, Palmer & Co., which was damaged by the recent fire.
The Mohongo will leave Wilmington for San Francisco to-morrow. Passengers will take the 6 o'clock p. m. train.
Mr. C. Phillips, of Spadra, shipped sixty-five bales of wool through the city last week, consigned to San Francisco.
Mr. E. M. Piercy, who is acting agent for the Bianchi Opera troupe, looks for their arrival here about the last of this month.
The circus will be here next Friday. The boys should commence at once to stow away their odd quarters in preparation for the occasion.
Mr. Addis packed up his tents and photographic equipments yesterday and departed for San Buenaventura. He expects to return to Los Angeles before long.
We would direct the attention of sheep-owners to the advertisement of "P. B." which appears under the head of "New Advertisements" this morning.
There will be a meeting of the Directors of the Chamber of Commerce this evening. A full attendance is requested, as business of importance will be transacted.
The case of Luca Marasovich, indicted for manslaughter, was tried in the District Court yesterday. The jury found the defendant guilty of assault and battery.
The following unstamped letters are held in the Postoffice: A. D. Staples, Banner City, Cal.; John M. Huntley, Carson City, Nev.; Mrs. M. F. Vanneest, Fleming, N. Y.
Messrs. P. F. Roth & Co., of San Francisco, who are stopping in our city, purchased last week three thousand and sheep of fine quality, which they propose to keep in this country.
Joe Murphy, with a company of ten actors, leaves for Los Angeles to-day and will be here doubtless this week. He will regale our play-goers with "Mum Crea" and "Help," two of his most popular specialties.
In the article "Trip to Wilmington" in our Sunday's issue we were made to say, "The grain is hauled from the depot to the warehouse by members of the warehouse company haul it at their own expense."
We acknowledge the compliments of Phippenburg's Band, paid last night with a fine serenade and three rousing cheers for the Herald. The band has only been organized about a week and already furnishes some very creditable music. Gentlemen, our regards.
We understand that Mr. Samuel Meyer has made another purchase of business property on Main street, adjoining Dr. Terry's drug store, giving him now a total frontage of seventy feet. We can only hope that some fine improvements on the property be fore long.
The Turn-Verein of this city are thinking of starting an evening or Sunday School for the instruction of their members who have not enjoyed early advantages of learning. The school will be conducted by members of the society, and both German and English will be taught.
Dr. M. S. Jones has entered into a copartnership with Dr. Hardy, an old resident and highly esteemed physician of Anaheim. Dr. Jones has already removed his office to Anaheim, but makes visits to Los Angeles Saturday and Sunday of each week to attend to his patients here.
Mr. T. M. Hellman, with his family, returned to this city last Saturday from Cucamonga. Mr. Hellman's family have been rusticating in that hospitable locality for some time past. While rusticating, Mr. Hellman was a bit of gunning, and in an hour's time killed twenty rabbits and fifteen quails. There's no telling what he would have killed if it had been a good day for game.
Mr. J. H. Brady is a hewer of wood and a drawer of water; principally the former. Recently he left some wood with Mr. Ferguson, the commission merchant, to be sold on his account and risk. When called for, the returns for the wood were not forthcoming and a quarrel arose between the parties in interest, in which the commission merchant drew a revolver and flourished it about to a considerable extent. Justice Gray will settle it.
Judge O'Melveny fined another lot of delinquent jurors yesterday, as will be seen by our court report. It costs anywhere from five or ten dollars and a certain lecture to offend the majesty of the law now-a-days. If our citizens do not become more prompt in answering the summons to appear as jurors, Judge O'Melveny promises to place a higher tariff on the luxury of exemption. We have commented upon this subject heretofore, and can now only reiterate our hope that the Judge will fully maintain the authority of the law and enforce the duty of every citizen when required.
At a general meeting of Orange Lodge, I. O. B. B., held on Sunday, July 12th, the following officers were installed for the ensuing term: Saml Prager, President; A. W. Edelman, Vice-President; I. W. Hellman, M.; J. Goldsmith, Secretary; H. Fleishman, Financial Secretary; I. Norton, Treasurer; G. Katzenstein, A. M.; E. Greenbaum, W. M.; Joseph Bien, of San Francisco, P. G. N. A. of District Grand Lodge No. 4 of California, having been deputed to conduct the installation, performed the same with great ability and satisfaction to all present, and after the conclusion of the ceremonies addressed the Lodge with some very appropriate remarks, giving the history of the Order from its infancy to its present flourishing condition throughout the United States, to which the President elect, Mr. S. Prager, responded in a very able manner.

MAP OF OUR BACK COUNTRY.

Map showing the geographical and commercial position of Los Angeles; the system of Trans-Pacific Railroads on the Pacific Coast; the important ranges of mountains parallel to the coast north and south of San Geronimo Pass—the only natural pass in the mountains from Lower California to Oregon; showing also the largest and richest mining region in the world tributary to Los Angeles; showing the proposed railroads to the rich mines of Cerro Gordo and to Salt Lake; also the thirty-fifth and thirty-second parallel routes and their junction at Albuquerque, as proposed by Col. Scott. The names of the following important places in the county are omitted from the map for want of space: Anaheim, population, 1,500; San Gabriel, 200; El Monte, 100; Spadra, 200; Galatin, 100; Santa Ana, 50; Westminster, 50; Compton, 50; San Fernando, 50; Florence, 50; Tustin City, 50. These are each the nucleus of a rich farming section. It is plain to be seen that Los Angeles county is the representative county of Southern California, and the emporium of Los Angeles county and Southern California is Los Angeles City, centrally located therein; also centrally located in the best valley on the globe.

Compton and Vicinity.
A railroad depot, a country tavern and store, one blacksmith shop, a neat little church costing $3,800, a nice public school-house which cost nearly $4,000, two stories high, for a graded school, with a few farm houses scattered over the surrounding country, constitutes the village of Compton, if village it may be called, situated in as beautiful a section as can be found. This settlement is eight miles north of Wilmington, and twelve miles south of Los Angeles, on the Los Angeles and San Pedro Railroad. The social and moral condition of the people of Compton is first-class. Regular preaching is stated every Sabbath in the church, a large and interesting Sunday school is maintained the year round, and a good graded school is kept up regularly, ten months each year. The school district numbers nearly two hundred children of school age. This settlement lies within the limits of the Artesian well district, and it does one good this warm, dry season to see the wells flowing, throwing their cooling streams into the air, glistening in the sunlight and filling the channels marked out for them by the husbandman who utilizes them in the production of as fine crops as grow anywhere here.

Thanks to Mr. G. D. Compton, who met us at the depot with his carriage and drove us first east, out across the Los Angeles river to the San Gabriel, making a circuit of a few miles through this lovely and productive region. This section is similar to the Los Nietos country and is about equally renowned for its immense yield of corn, barley, vines, and all kinds of vegetables, and as far as the cultivation of fruits has been tested, they prove a great success. We passed by many fields which yield annually one hundred bushels of corn with very little cultivation, one hundred and twenty have been produced here, and frequently eighty bushels with no cultivation—no labor but the planting and harvesting. With good cultivation, one hundred bushels of barley can here be produced; from sixty to eighty being an average yield. Six crops of alfalfa are cut in twelve months, yielding from twelve to fifteen tons to the acre. Here on the wild, unimproved lands is a growth of mustard standing ten or twelve feet high and beneath it is a heavy growth of blue-joint grass, burr-clover and all-hera, forming a growth of several tons to the acre of the best feed upon which stock can subsist. In the bed of Los Angeles river and adjoining its banks and all along the river, the San Gabriel river, as well as in the low tracts, have sprung up a growth of willow, since the Americans commenced the settlement of this country, about six years ago, and the growth has been so rapid that one acre is now considered a constant future supply for fuel for a family. It is estimated that some of the heaviest growths of this six-year-old willow timber land will cut one hundred bushels of wood to the acre. Who can estimate the value of this element of prosperity in this comparatively timberless country? No irrigation is needed in all this section for the production of grains or fruits or vegetables, but the water from the immense yield of the potato crops which have been produced here. From 300 to 700 bushels to the acre have been raised in one crop. Mr. Compton told us that in one year he sold $1,000 worth of potatoes from two acres of land. Of course this was an extra yield. Flowing wells, although really not a necessity, here can be easily obtained. Here I think we saw some of the most perfect orange orchards that ever grew. Before speaking of the price and more fully of the quality of these lands, we will mention, further, some of the extraordinary productions of this neighborhood. These statements, together with the foregoing, were given to us by truthful men, and may be relied on. Cabbage-heads have been raised here weighing thirty-six pounds; fifty-one pounds of sweet potatoes have been taken from one hill; three crops of barley from one sowing, being two volunteer crops, the third crop yielding fifty bushels to the acre, have been produced. Thus we might particularize, but it is unnecessary to do so, for the price of these lands lying from one to three or four miles from the depot at Compton, in the neighborhood of the Los Angeles and San Gabriel rivers, and almost all the unoccupied lands, ready or nearly so, for the plow, and the lots or tracts are so laid off that a road or street accommodates almost every forty acres. These lands can be bought in forty-acre lots or any size above that, to suit purchasers, varying in price from twenty dollars upwards; unimproved large tracts for the figure just named, while choice forty-acre tracts are held as high as thirty-five and forty dollars. We passed by one improved fine forty-acre tract for sale at fifty dollars per acre, including buildings, crops, etc., or less the crops, for forty dollars. If stock men would consult their interests they would pay twenty-five or thirty dollars for these lands, rather than go back into the foothills or out on the mesa, or table lands, to buy, simply because they can get land for five dollars per acre. And why? Because one acre of these lands produce as much feed, and that, too, all the year round, as twenty acres of the cheap hill or table land. Now the question may be asked, Are these locations healthy, in so close proximity to these rivers and where the land is so moist? We answer, Yes. There is no malaria here; nothing to produce biliousness any more than in upland locations. Although the growth of vegetation is enormous, there are no frosts to kill it, but it dries up when it matures, and new vegetation constantly springing forth. The soil through all this section is a light, sandy loam. From what has been said, is it not plain to be seen and cannot our Eastern friends understand that this land is cheap at thirty, forty, and even sixty and seventy-five dollars per acre? We say to immigrants, to all looking for homes in this beautiful valley—this most lovely section of Southern California, and in the late John Rowland, father of these lands as we have described them, and they are for sale. Most of the land alluded to is in the hands of G. D. Compton, land agent.

Another Pioneer Gone.
The Express thus comments upon the death of John Reed, an old and well remembered citizen of this country: "At four o'clock yesterday afternoon, John Reed, one of the earliest pioneers of California, died at his home, on the Puente ranch. Mr. Reed came here at the same time Mr. Workman, Mr. Rowland and others arrived, in 1837, or thereabouts. His brother, James Reed, died about two years ago, and they both enjoyed a wide celebrity as trappers and hunters among early frontiersmen. During the Mexican war, Mr. Reed, like all the Americans here at the time, and many of the native Californians too, espoused the cause of his native country, and rendered valuable service to the American arms and interest. He was a son-in-law of the late John Rowland, and of our present Sheriff, and had a valuable estate in the Puente ranch. During the early immigration of the gold-seekers across the plains Mr. Reed's hospitality and generosity were proverbial. He was kind of heart, warm of disposition, and dispensed his bounty with a liberal hand. He was about fifty-six years of age, and died regretted by all who knew him. His funeral took place this (Monday) afternoon, and was attended by the Veterans of the Mexican War, the Masonic Order, and a host of friends from every walk of life."

Where is Tom Collins?
A card emanating from the New York Postoffice passed through the office at this place last Saturday, which is something of a curiosity in its way. The card seems to be a sort of scapegoat upon which everybody has laid hands with maledictions as it passed through the various Postoffices of the country. On the back is a comical picture, executed with a pen, of four men apparently searching intently for something or other. One has a pistol, another a club, the third a knife and the last a gun. They are looking for Tom Collins. The face of the card is thus diversified with supercriptions: "Where's Tom Collins? Left Tremont House; gone to the village of St. Louis, New York, June 26th." "Several parties in the St. Louis Postoffice are looking for Tom and Jerry." St. Louis, June 30th. "The ever-windmilled wind of the New York Postoffice, Chicago, June 26th." "Not in Los Angeles; said to be speculating in corner lots in San Diego, Los Angeles, July 11th." From here the card was forwarded to San Diego, and thence we suppose it will find its way back to the New York Postoffice, after making its curious journey over the length and breadth of the United States.

From the Delta of July 9.
The celebration of our natal day passed off here in Visalia in very good order. A large procession marched out to witness the breaking ground for railroad.
We here of damage being done near town by stock owned here in the place. As the no-fence law is in full force, it would be well for the people to provide some range for their gentle stock.
The contract for grading the road-bed and laying down the track of the Visalia road, was awarded to Daniel Spangler, for one thousand dollars per mile. The grading is going rapidly forward, the ties are on hand, and the iron will soon be delivered. It is expected that by the 25th of August at furthest, the cars will be running into Visalia.
There were more people in Visalia on the Fourth than have been in the town at one time for several years. It was a grand reunion of Visalia's old friends and supporters, and it will tend to bring the people into closer and more friendly relations with each other. Not a drunk was seen, not a break was made outside the bounds of good order, but the masses were pleased, the bands sweetly played, and the Calithumps drew out the laughter.
We recently called attention to the enterprise of Jackson & Co., in attempting the cultivation of cotton in this county. It was our privilege, on Sunday last, to inspect the growing crop. One field, of sixty acres, presents a splendid stand, and will soon be in blossom. The other field having in a great measure failed to come up, owing to the lumpy character of the ground, and much of what did come up having been destroyed by grasshoppers, the crop was not deemed worth cultivating.
